Press Release

TORONTO, February 1, 2016 - Ryerson School of Interior Design (RSID) is pleased to present their Year End Show, Dialogue IN[SID]. This event is a celebration of excellence in student work that is open to students, their friends, family and the industry. This year's show, will take place at Ryerson's School of Interior Design located at 302 Church Street. The opening industry night will take place on Thursday, April 21, 2016. This exhibition will also be open to the general public for free Saturday, April 23 to Wednesday, April 27.

Ryerson School of Interior Design hosts this exhibition each year, however each year the theme of the show changes. This year's show, titled Dialogue IN[SID], is meant to be a physical representation of the unique processes that each student takes during their time at RSID.

A vibrant exchange of ideas flow within the world of design. This movement creates a dialogue in which past principles of design can harmonize with the new developed values we cherish today. By narrowing down key elements, we are able to broadly collaborate within a wide range of creative industries, gaining multiple original perspectives. The layering of crafts from hand-drafting to advanced technologies are two forms of design that are greatly linked and are celebrated for their own unique strengths. By merging these approaches, we create a balance. Dialogue will realize these principles and will continue to fabricate these innovations in design.

Ryerson is well known for its esteemed Interior Design program and the Year End Show is a beautiful articulation of the success of the student body. Each year the event showcases student work in a new and captivating way. Dialogue however, is more than just a final accumulation of a year's worth of student work. Dialogue will give viewers a look into all aspects of life at Ryerson School of Interior Design from student process work, final projects, collaborations with professors, and other endeavours.
